At that point — the late 1950s the Press Box tavern (now a Fort

"I made my first money on the fumbled around and pretty soon could play a few chords. Then we got better and better and played Huntington, Auburn, Decatur — you name it. They're calling us thing brings patrons back to The Maples Inn, time and again. In the entire audience, only one guy

— the 35-ish man in a powder blue sportshirt at the end of the bar — is not amused or intrigued.

There's some regional pride involved. Come 10 o'clock, Polly asks, "Are there any Buckeyes in here?" and the pool table-side table of 10 arises. They clap vigorously after "Beeeee-uuutiful

Have you heard of the Leo Lions?"

"In our area, I would say Polly &

Something you would not find in

Welcome to The Maples

GERARDOT

Home of Polly & Erv and the marching Samoan cha-cha

Polly & Erv, at The Maples: Their music would stymie anthropologists, musicologists and Rolling Stone magazine.

By JOHN BORDSEN
Of The News-Sentinel

Clean-cut young women in red-white-and-blue swimsuits are stroking medals, but nobody is watching. The slick-haired and beefy people here are as patriotic as anybody, but that's on TV and coming from Los Angeles, a different America than what's found at Maples, a road-and-rail junction 10 miles southeast of Fort Wayne.

It is 9:15 on Saturday night at the tavern known simply as The Maples Inn, and the stool beneath the television tube is the only one empty: 36 patrons are elbow-to-elbow along the rail and at the tables. Muggy? Wipe the outline of a ringtop off your beer can and a same-shape dew ghost quickly reappears.

Then, over the dank and smoky din, comes a woman's wail. It's a brazen, tune-deaf blat — like a Gilda Radner solo, or like Ethel Mertz after losing a shot-glass relay match with Lucy.

"R-A-G
"R-A-G-G"

A form of musical accompaniment kicks in as a clump of people tries to snake by. They try to clap to the Hawaiian-country strumming, but the tempo is irregular and filled with flubs.

"R-A-G
"R-A-G-G"

The audience echoing the letters is more on key than the caterwaul coming out of a fuzzy little amp system. Bobbing heads part briefly to show a woman pinned behind a table near the front door. She is walloping a six-string guitar in a happy frenzy and almost gumming her microphone.

"R-A-G-G-M-O-P-P
"Rag Mop!"

There is a lurch in the barroom traffic pattern; through the human congestion comes a crinkled man whose yellow-shirted potbelly is suspended over belt-cinched baggy pants. Patrons on stools are jammed against the bar as he turns to face the woman. A cord that trails him connects to a kitchen broom in his hands. An aluminum rod is fixed to the backside of the broom handle; musical instrument strings are pegged to the front. He stops to do a little three-string solo and vanishes into the singing thicket with his electric broom.

The woman's strumming and howling persists; the man is next spied sitting near her, at a piano: He's plunking the keys and furiously stomping the pedal of a high hat cymbal — it all sounds like a primitive Samoan marching cha-cha. He occasionally catches up to the rhythm but no one cares. They're happy enough. When the onetime Ames Brothers tune grinds to a stop, the woman at the microphone stands, raises her glass, and yells, "When Polly drinks, eeeeeverybody drinks."

There is no rush for the Mr. Do! video game nor for the 50-cent Limberger sandwiches sold behind the counter.

When Polly drinks, everybody drinks.

"Aren't they something?" is what Bev Kline, owner of The Maples, says of Polly & Erv, her Saturday night housepackers. They certainly are. From 9 p.m. to midnight every Saturday, the country tavern is packed with people who've come to see Mr. and Mrs. Erv Gerardot perform.

Erv doesn't sing, but does some parlor sleight-of-hand, and — electric broom in hand — occasionally plays while walking atop the bar. Like a camel that plays the clarinet, the quality of the music is secondary to the fact that it's played at all.

Kline says, "We wrote a letter to 'Real People' to try and get them out here. We got a letter back from them that said, 'We're watching you,' but they never came."

Getting to Maples, Ind., on a Saturday night can take hours of exploration through a rustic, bug-heavy 'Twilight Zone' of gravel roads and asphalt-black sky. Most cityfolk try to take the Franke Road turn-off south from Indiana 30 — if they can find it — because it leads to The Maples parking lot.

The "Real People" crew may have gotten lost around Zulu, and Bev Kline is away on vacation, but it looks like all the rest of metro Maples is in attendance.

There are five tables in all, not counting the pool table, which is sporting a felt-covered plywood topper. The two tables closest to Polly are occupied by gray-haired couples who sip slowly. Behind them are younger people who have brought their pre-teen children, whose presence is as much a hallmark of a country bar as the cardboard display of Red Devil flints. Some men wear Izod shirts and have companions who don't use Dottie West as a fashion role model.

Then there's the group of 10 that just came in and took over the folding chairs around the pool table. It includes two grandparents and a pair of Van Halen sapiens.

Some younger patrons yell for "Louie Louie" and "Purple Haze." Polly launches into "Dixie," exhorting everyone to stand — and everyone does, except for a 12-year-old who's obviously embarrassed at grown-up horseplay. Polly asks everyone to remain standing for "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and then for "God Bless America."

And Polly likes everybody to sing, as well as raise a glass with her. She is queen here.

Polly Lovedny-Gerardot came to the Fort Wayne area from outside Knoxville, Tenn., around 1952 — the date is as vague as her age ("Just say I'm 39"). "I had a sister up here and I come up to visit her and just her a homemade guitar — it was homemade because I lost my fanny in the beer business."

At that point — the late 1950s — they decided to try their hand at music. Their first job was at the Press Box tavern (now a Fort Wayne Newspapers parking lot). "I made my first money on the piano when I was 51 years old. I fumbled around and pretty soon could play a few chords. Then we got better and better and played Huntington, Auburn, Decatur — you name it. They're calling us yet today."

Erv stands on tables to perform sleight-of-hand; Polly wants everybody to drink.

Erv is originally from the Maples area — Jefferson Township — and moved to Fort Wayne in 1922. "When I was 10 or 12, I used to look through the Sears catalogues at the musical instruments. I played the ukelele and — for six months — took violin lessons."

The guitar proved to be his instrument: "In the 1930s, I played the tenor guitar and straight guitar in The Hoosier String Pickers. The three of us played at the old WOWO, (1190-AM), when it was located on the floor above Main Auto." The band, he says, ranged as far as Joliet, Ill., and Kenosha, Wis.

Then he put aside his instruments for about 20 years, worked at Sweeney Mills, and owned and operated The Old Piano Bar, at 916 W. Main St. (now a St. Joseph Hospital parking lot).

"I met Polly there, and made

Why doesn't Erv sing? "I just can't."

How did Polly pick up her guitar style? "Erv sort of half-learned me how to play."

How does she describe her singing style? "Oh, I don't know. I wouldn't know about how to describe that."

And where did that electric broom come from?

Erv: "I wanted something that someone else hasn't got, and I never saw one on TV or anything. I've been playing that for about 12 years now."

"I've got a double neck one I'm going to bring out one of these days. I made two or three others but they're not as good as the original, which I just slapped together."

Polly: "He just dreamed it up one night."

Howls and clinkers don't make for repeat business — but something brings patrons back to The Maples Inn, time and again. In the entire audience, only one guy — the 35-ish man in a powder blue sportshirt at the end of the bar — is not amused or intrigued.

There's some regional pride involved. Come 10 o'clock, Polly asks, "Are there any Buckeyes in here?" and the pool table-side table of 10 arises. They clap vigorously after "Beeeee-uuuutiful Ohio" is done in classic Polly & Erv marching-Samoan-cha-cha form.

Rolling Stone magazine might pronounce this to be indigenous skiffle music. A musicologist or a generic anthropologist could easily crank out a long-winded thesis on this pair. As could a sand-headed primordial screamer from L.A.

"When Polly drinks, everybody drinks."

But, by God, this is the American heartland, and it makes a lot more sense to talk to the 40-ish/50-ish couple that just occupied the two stools on the left. Hey, what's your name, where are you from, and what do you think of all this?

He: "Well, they're something different, if you know what I mean."

She: "My name is Joan Rediger, and this is Bob Meyers. He lives in Fort Wayne and I'm from Leo. I think this is very different, very unique. Something you probably couldn't see anywhere else in the world, really. I'm so amazed at their —"

"Byyyyyyyyyyye byyyyyyye. Blackbird!"

"... energy. I mean, they put everything into their singing."

"Now, everybody stand — everybody stand up and sing 'God Bless America.'"

Regardless of how it comes out? "Yeah," Joan yells over the noise. They play songs here you wouldn't hear anywhere else."

"My home. Sweet. Hooooome!"

After sitting down, Joan continues.

ues. "They're a long, long time ago; songs that I sang from when I —"

"A hey, bob-a-ree-bop — Everybody sing — A hey, bob-a-ree-bop."

"I'm from Leo, a very small town. It's a little bigger than this. Have you heard of the Leo Lions?"

"In our area, I would say Polly & Erv are very unique and very rare. Something you would not find in public anywhere else. Really."

"I think it is... kind of old-time music. It kind of brings you back to what, where we really are."

"If you. Knew Susie. Like I knew Susie — Come on, sing!"

"There's a kind of unity," Joan observes. "Person-to-person. You can come here and have a good time with very little expense. I've been to a lot of places but this is the kind of place where you can let your hair down and have a good time —"

"Innnnyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyy -nuh"

"... easily. Now here's an old one for you: 'Indiana.'"

Did Leo have anything like this — homegrown entertainment — when you were growing up?

"Well, I grew up on a farm near Yoder. I never heard of Maples until I came here." But Leo has no homegrown entertainers."

"We go a lot by requests," Polly says. "Most bands, when they play, play what they just want to. We just play what the people want."

"We get a different price at different places. The further away we play, the more we make."

"Every now and then, we get offers for the Moose in New Haven and around in there. Erv don't like to play on Friday night. He works every day over at Lawton Nursing home — maintenance man over there — and Saturday morning he likes to fish and play golf."

Playing music is Polly's livelihood.

"We played at the Pioneer Bar, in Arcola for quite a while. Mark and Don Webber owned it."

"How long've we been at the Maples? It'll be eight years in October."

"We stopped in here one afternoon and got to talking to the lady that owned it. Her name was Wanda... 'Hewing' or 'Ewing' or something like that. She's been dead for quite some time."

"We made a deal and have been here ever since."

About 11 p.m., Bob Meyers leans over and says he's been coming out here for three or four years. His friend Joan explains she's a recent convert.

Erv and Polly: A one-of-a-kind act

A 68-year-old man who plays an electric broom while wearing a woman's wig in a tavern that features a wild boar's head on one wall can only be billed as "unique entertainment."

With wife Polly playing the guitar and crooning into an old-fashioned square mike in a voice somewhere between Ethel Merman and Janis Joplin, you know you've got an act that's one-of-a-kind.

And it pulls in a weekend audience in rural Allen County that starts out middle-aged and gets younger as the night slides by in a knee-slappin', toe-tappin' good time.

Erv and Polly Gerardot play a little country, some blues, '50s tunes and polkas from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays at the rustic Maples Inn, R.R. 7, Fort Wayne.

On many of the numbers, Erv strums an electric broom he says he "threw together in two or three weeks" some years ago. The red-handled contraption looks a tad scraggly in the straw department. That's because, Erv declares, "people pick off straws as souvenirs."

Erv says he paid 39 cents for the broom and maybe $50 or so for the electronics on it. The keyboard is made of plastic bathroom tiles. "I figured the spacing out myself — if it's off one-thirtieth of an inch, it won't work," he explains.

Maybe that's the problem with a four-string electric broom he made but doesn't use in public. "I can't get it to work right," Erv says with a disappointed shake of his head.

You can tell Erv loves his three-stringer, though. Goaded by hand-clapping patrons on a recent Friday night, Erv stepped up on a chair near the bar, strumming the broom, eyes closed, one foot tapping to the music.

"Higher," the crowd yelled. Erv went up an octave as Polly looked on with a grin. "Higher," the beer drinkers shouted again. Obliging, Erv clambered up on the bar, edging up two more octaves on the broom before his audience was satisfied.

Then he eased his way down onto the chair and back to the floor. Sweat glistened on his face.

"Some nights," one of Erv's fans confided, "he'll jump down from the bar when he's done. He must not feel up to it tonight."

Erv was up to about anything else, though. During the 15-minute breaks he and his wife of 20 years take each hour, Erv performs magic tricks.

"Go on, light it good," he instructed one young woman. She held a match to the filter end of a Parliament until it was blazing. Then Erv poked an indentation in a tissue, waved it around, thrust the burning cigarette into it, and produced an empty, unscathed tissue. The cigarette had vanished.

Perhaps it's the magic tricks that packs the house on weekends at the east Allen County tavern, built in 1883. Or maybe it's the atmosphere of a rollicking good time, inspired by Erv's and Polly's music.

The couple met in the '50s at the old G&G Bar that Erv owned on Main Street in Fort Wayne.

The warm-hearted Polly, who ends every song with a drawled "All right!" is from Tennessee. Asked her age, Polly smiled, winked, and said, "I'm 39, baby."

The couple's renditions of "Tea For Two," "Ain't She Nice" and "I Crossed the Line" apparently appeal to a mixed crowd.

At 9 p.m., the room was filled with mostly middle-aged folks. One of the patrons pointed out a couple of doctors and Wayne Candies executives dressed in shirt and tie. Two other men wore loud Hawaiian shirts.

By 11 p.m., the place was filled with mostly young folks in blue jeans marveling at Erv wearing a woman's gray wig and banging on the piano.

Not one disco beat was heard all night. That, apparently, suited everyone there. As a T-shirt worn by a bartender proclaimed, "Disco Sucks."

Why do Polly and Erv do what they do? Because, Polly said, "I never get tired of this. I love people. If I can make somebody happy, if I can get somebody to sing along, it makes me happy."

Erv agreed, then pointed out he's never had a music lesson in his life. But he plays the broom, piano, accordion, banjo, saw and fiddle.

Asked when they planned to retire, they declared, "We're not going to. We've never even thought about it."

That's fortunate for the three young men who recently bought the Maples Inn. They know they have a good thing going with Polly and Erv. "Everybody likes 'em," one owner said. "They're unique."

By DEBRA RINARD

It appears the Federation of Neighborhood Associations has gasped its last.

Founded about 10 years ago as an advisory council to the local Office of Economic Opportunity (predecessor to the Allen County Economic Opportunity Council), the federation last met a year or so ago.

Its demise, according to its most recent president, Jerry Henry, was a lack of interest among the member neighborhood associations. "I got tired of looking at only three or four people," he said. Each of the city's some 80 neighborhood groups had been invited to attend the monthly federation meetings.

Originally, the federation had the participation of 11 associations: Lake Everett, Nebraska, West Side, West Central, East Central, LaSalle (now the LaRez Association) AMPB (now the Memorial Park Association), McCormick Place, Riverhaven, and public housing projects Brookmill Courts and Greenfield Square.

Its founders included Art and Mary Blaising of Riverhaven and James Henderson of East Central. Blaising said the group was formed as a sort of watchdog over OEO, to oversee how federal funds were spent in poverty pockets in the city and county.

All types of "people problems" were addressed by the federation, according to Henderson, but special concerns were improved housing and street lighting, prostitution and law enforcement.

"Many problems were brought to the federation," Henderson said. "We didn't have the expertise to solve all the problems, but we did seek out the agencies that could help."

The federation, which had more clout than an association by itself, didn't hesitate to go to the mayor the original 11 associations we improve.

Some of the original groups were not being addressed, so representatives to the meetings.

Henry diagnosed the problem as being too oriented. "People would only come to the an axe to grind," he said. "Taken care of, the people stopped. Henry would have liked the an organization that would have de corps" among neighborhood served as an educational tool, to organize associations, and how once they were started.

Support for that concept Henry felt he was "running a meeting was held in May or June, but no one has complained to attend.

In effect, the federation died. The question, however, remains for a coalition of neighborhood Henderson muses that the original concept, but that a coalition groups could be beneficial. "It come together and see what we does. "What affects one part of the feeds all the city."

Blaising still thinks there is organization "to keep an eye on money," to stand by in case some Gus Verslynen, Nebraska mayor, likes the idea of a federal cuss problems and solutions

THE HISTORY OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH AT ICE.

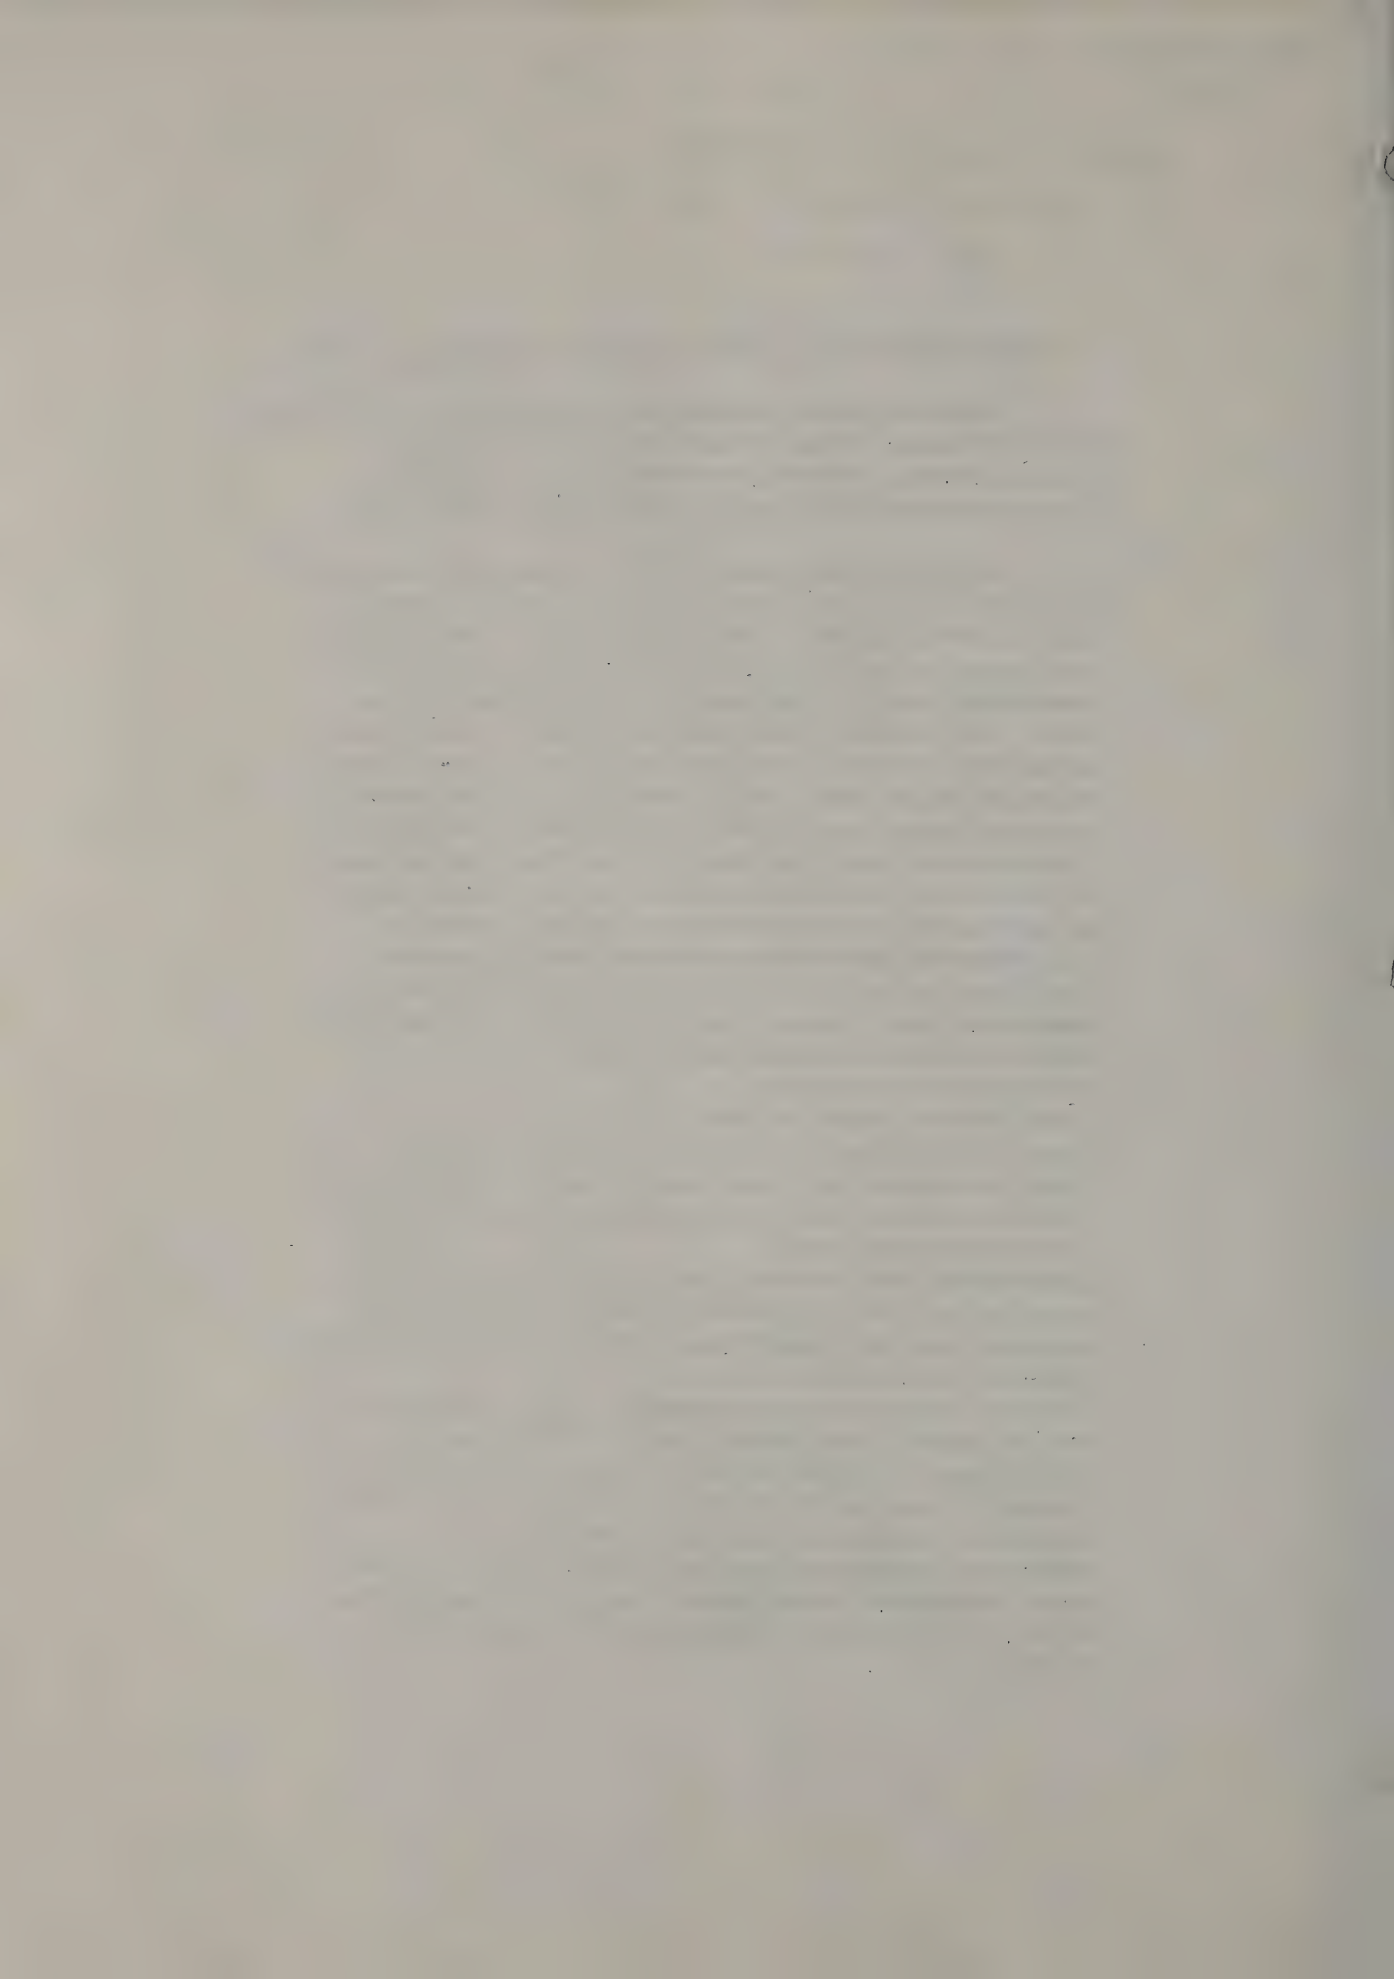

When Gabriel Girardot left his native home in France in 1853 he made a vow to build a church, as an act of thanksgiving, if his family could leave their little farm home near Paris and join him in the New World.

Being a devout Catholic, Mr. Girardot fulfilled his vow after his wife and three small children arrived in what is now Swan Twp., Noble Co., Ind. On this farm Mr. Girardot built a small log church and all the crude furnishings with his own hands, including the altar and seats. Two acres of his farm were given for the church and a burial ground. The church was called St. Marys and stood where the crucifix now stands in the cemetery a short distance east of the present church, while the Girardot homestead bordered the cemetery on the east. Mr. and Mrs. Girardot occupied the original log house as long as they lived and the farm is still owned by their descendants of the second and third generation. This little log church was finished in 1855 and dedicated in 1856 by Father Deschamps who was located at Avilla. Gabriel Girardot died in 1900, and is buried in the church cemetery.

A few French Catholics lived close by namely: Peter Cuney, John Pachon', Bryle and Guiff and families. After the dedication of the church Father Deschamp continued to visit St. Marys and the place was known as "Girardots Settlement".

Shortly after this several Irish Catholic families located on farms in neighboring counties. Among these families were the Philip Lynch, Patrick Mahoney, Thomas Madden, Wilkinsons and others.

The Rev. Henry Vincent Schaeffer, also of Avilla visited the Mission periodically until in 1863 when a larger frame church was built to accommodate the increasing congregation. This church was built on the site of the original log church and was 25x40 ft. Before the church was finished Bishop Luers and Father Benoit celebrated Mass here while prospecting for the location of an Orphans Home for the Diocese of Ft. Wayne.

When completed this little new church was valued at $1000. For several years after this church was built the priests from Avilla came to St. Marys to attend to the spiritual needs of the parish.

Early in 1870 a number of German families located on farms near the church, among the first German settlers in the community were Peter Hottiger, Anthony John, Charles Schoenher, Daniel Weaver and a few others.

In 1875 Father Duehmig of Avilla purchased four acres of land for the congregation of St. Marys just a short distance west of the church. A new frame church was built on this location to more adequately provide for the rapidly increasing congregation. This was a frame church 35x90 ft. with a seating capacity for 260 people. At the time of dedication the name was changed to the church of the Immaculate Conception. With the growing congregation came an increasing number of children to such an extent that it was deemed advisable to organize a Parochial School. The old church erected in 1863 was moved westward near the new church. It was remodeled for a school room, a priest's home and living quarters for three Franciscan Sisters who came from Joliet Ill., to take charge of the new school.

Between 1870 and 1875 a number of Polish immigrants settled in the community and as none of them could speak English, Peter Garstka acted as their leader and interpreter. The ways of America were different from the way of their homeland, but after their adjustment they became exemplary citizens and were devoted to their religious duties according to the new order of things.

The first resident pastor was Rev. William Giers who took charge of the parish in 1876. He was succeeded by Rev. Peter Franzen who remained in charge until Oct. 1878 when Father Francis K. came to the parish and remained for almost 20 years. He was a native of Wurtinburg, Germany, a deep student and a very highly educated man.

On coming to the church of the Immaculate Conception, Father Ege found an indebtedness of $3500. This was almost paid off, when in 1885 the old church building, used as a parish house and school, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground together with all the contents. In 1886 a new brick school building was erected south of the church accomodating 60 pupils, the upper floor was used for parish meetings and entertainments. There were also living quarters for the teaching Sisters.

During Father Ege's pastorate the beautiful, large brick home was built that for almost 60 years has been the parish house. The cost of this home was $3500. When Father Ege's successor, Rev. Francis P. Foust took charge of the parish he found a surprisingly small debt of only $300.

In the later 1880's, a postoffice was established here and was named Ege, to honor the faithful pastor. The first postmaster was Joseph Mason who kept a little country store at the northwest corner of the crossroads.

In 1922 another catastrophe visited the church of the Immaculate Conception, when it was completely destroyed by fire. However, as in other disasters, the congregation decided unanimously to build a bigger and better church. Under the guidance of Rev. Raphael Donnelly a beautiful brick church was built in 1923. It is a monument to those pioneers who came to worship God in a free America. Many of these pioneers are honored with beautiful imported stained glass windows in the new church. The interior of which is artistically decorated, while the altars and statuary are very inspirational.

Today (1944) the property of the church of the Immaculate Conception is outstanding for a rural community, consisting as it does of the church, Parish House and school, all fine substantial brick buildings advantageously located at the crossing of two roads. These buildings stand on four acres of ground beautifully landscaped with trees and shrubbery. The two acres of ground where the little old log church was located is a beautiful, well kept cemetery where many fine marble and granite monuments and headstones mark the last resting place of these pioneers.

As a memorial to their parents, the family of Peter Garstka have erected the beautiful iron fence surrounding the cemetery.

The congregation of the church of the Immaculate Conception now consists of seventy families and the present pastor is the Rev. Cassimere R. Moskwinske.

The broad acres that spread in every direction from the focal point - The Church - are owned, for the most part, by the children and grandchildren of those pioneers from France, Ireland, Germany and Poland. The peace and tranquility of the community might well be the setting of "The Angelus" or "The Gleaners", masterpieces of the great French artist Millet.

Peace, prosperity, and contentment are evident in the comfortable, substantial and well ordered homes; homes that could not be enjoyed today if their ancestors had lacked the courage to come to America. "The land of the Free" to worship their God as they chose.

Mrs. W.A. DeVault

The writer's father, Dr. Francis M. Magers and his brother, Mr. Ambrose Magers came in 1864 and should be counted among the early settlers. Dr. F.M. Magers practiced medicine for 52 yrs. in this community.

MRS. HARRY GIRARDOT OF CORUNNA SUGGESTS THE
J-G. CARRY ONE WHOLE PAGE OF GOOD NEWS
CONSISTING OF ITEMS LIKE THIS. THE GIRARDOTS WERE ON ROAD 30 EAST OF LAGRANGE WHEN THEY HAD A FLAT TIRE. MR. GIRARDOT IS DISABLED AND MRS GIRARDOT STILL THINKS
RIMS ARE DEMOUNTABLE. A YOUNG COUPLE WITH SEVERAL CHILDREN PASSED THEN TURNED AROUND AND CAME BACK. THE YOUNG MAN
CHANGED THE TIRES AND WOULDN'T ACCEPT ANY PAY. THINGS LIKE THAT SEE?

Copy verbatim on this form the information you find in the various records or books as you do your research. (You will find differences in records.) Make a separate sheet for each search or each name or family on your line found in a search. Then, after information has been extracted from all sources, you may easily make comparisons of statements, judge value of each, and record correct data on a permanent form such as A1, F1, F3 or F6. See The Sixth Edition THE HOW BOOK FOR GENEALOGISTS for additional suggestions regarding the use of this sheet.
